Madison Utilities Opens New Water Facility

The Water & Wastewater Board of the City of Madison (Madison Utilities) officially opened the new Terris Tatum Tennessee River Intake Facility on Friday, July 13.

Named for the long-serving Madison Utilities Board Chair, Terris Tatum, this first Tennessee River Intake Facility for the City of Madison will allow for the withdrawal and treatment of an initial four (4) million gallons of water per day for treatment to service the residents of Madison with clean drinking water, with capacity for later plant expansion.

Tatum was first appointed to serve as a member of the Water and Wastewater Board of the City of Madison on March 12, 1991, and has served as Board Chairman since 1998. Since he has served on the board, Madison Utilities has completed $50 million in infrastructure improvements to serve the residents of the City of Madison.

Aeolians Win Big in South Africa

The Oakwood University Aeolians achieved highest scores in two categories to win big at the 10th edition of World Choir Games in Tshwane, located in the northern part of South Africa.

Competing in the categories of Spirituals, University and College and Musica Contemporanea, the Aeolians bested over 22 other choirs from around the world, triumphing not only with the highest score in two of the three categories entered, but winning three gold medals, of which two were championships at the biennial event. Their gold medal-winning scores were:

- Spirituals 97.88
- University and College Choirs: 96.88
- Musica Contemporanea: 91.00

The invited assortment of over 300 choirs this year hailed from around the world. Many came from South Africa, Sweden, Germany and beyond, as well as further-flung locales such as Singapore, Indonesia, Argentina, China and the United States.

INTERKULTUR, event

organizers, hosted the world's largest choir competition for the first time on the continent of Africa with Tshwane as the host city. This year marks the 30th year of the games and 11 days of competition.

“We are delighted to acknowledge, to the glory of God, the hard work, and sacrifice of the Aeolians and their leadership,” says

Dr. Leslie Pollard, president of Oakwood University.

Dr. Pollard went on to say, “We express appreciation for our major sponsor, Kettering Health Network, and all of the generous supporters that made this opportunity possible. Thank you for believing in the global ministry of Oakwood University.”

Washington in One Minute

Here are the happenings in and around Washington, D.C., this week:

1. The full Senate will take up a package of 4 FY2019 appropriations bills: Transportation/HUD, Financial Services, Agriculture and Interior.

2. On Tuesday, President Trump traveled to Kansas City, Mo., to address the 119th Veterans of Foreign Wars National Convention. On Wednesday, he met with European Union President Jean-Claude Juncker at the White House. On Thursday, the President traveled to Dubuque, Iowa, for a roundtable event where, according to the Des Moines Register, the price of soybeans has dropped 20% since retaliatory tariffs against Iowa farm products imposed by China took effect earlier this year. He will then fly 330 miles south to Granite City, IL, where in March 2018, U.S. Steel put 500 workers back on the job by restarting one of two idled blast furnaces in response to the President's tariffs on imported steel and aluminum.

3. On Tuesday, the House Judiciary Committee held a hearing on how states may collect sales and use taxes on remote transactions in the wake of the Supreme Court's June 21 decision in South Dakota v. Wayfair which tossed out the 1992 physical presence doctrine, which allows states to expand their authority over online sales taxation.

4. On Wednesday, jury selection began in the trial of former Trump Campaign manager, Paul Manafort, in federal court in Alexandria, VA. Manafort was indicted in October 2017 on bank and tax fraud charges. According to Fox News, ex-lobbyist Tony Podesta, brother of Hillary Clinton's Campaign chair John Podesta, has been offered immunity to testify against Manafort by Special Counsel Robert Mueller.

5. On Wednesday and Thursday, Secretary of State Mike Pompeo held the first Global Summit on Advancing Religious Freedom at the State Department with faith leaders and diplomats from the around the world. Vice President Mike Pence was expected to attend the event.

6. On Thursday, talks resumed in Washington with Mexican, Canadian, and U.S. officials attempting to complete the renegotiation of the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA). Mexican President-Elect Andres Manuel Lopez Obrador released a 7-page letter on Sunday that he sent to President Trump asking for swift conclusion to the NAFTA talks.

7. On Thursday at 11 a.m., the Senate Committee on Health, Education,

Labor and Pensions held a full committee hearing on "Modernizing Apprenticeships to Expand Opportunities."

8. Last Thursday, President Trump signed an executive order establishing the National Council for the American Worker, an advisory board of administration officials, state and local leaders, and industry executives, to address urgent workforce issues. At the same event, a group of major employers, including FEDEX, Walmart, IBM, Boeing, and Apple, pledged to train (or retrain) thousands of American workers over the next 5 years.

From the Editor

There are few couples—outside the glitzy realms of Hollywood perhaps—who command the admiration and respect of a more than 40-year throng of followers quite like Dr. Henry Bradford, Jr., and Mrs. Nell Lane Bradford.

The Bradfords, now legendary faculty and husband-wife retirees whose lives are synonymous with a 'golden age' of music and music education at historic Alabama A&M University, were fiercely devoted to a higher education career that spanned from the 1940s through the 1980s. In fact, during my college years at A&M in the late 1970s, Dr. Bradford served as my chaplain.

While there have been countless honors and recognitions to the Bradfords for decades, both individually and as a couple, each musical tribute to the duo is an event all to itself.

A case in point is the much-anticipated Friends of the Bradfords' 2nd Annual Bradford Scholarship Gala. The 6 p.m. musical treat will be held on Saturday, July 28, 2018, at the Von Braun Center North Hall Salon 3, with tickets priced at $50 each.

Designed to benefit the worthwhile Dr. Henry Bradford, Jr., and Mrs. Nell Lane Bradford Scholarship Foundation, Inc., the Gala will feature Dr. Anthony B. Stinson and the Nell Lane Bradford Legacy Choir. Dr. Stinson has been a long-time advocate of The Bradfords. Moreover, he was an integral part of the Bradfords' portrait unveiling program held in J.F. Drake Memorial Learning Resources Center on the AAMU campus in 2014.

The Dr. Henry Bradford, Jr. and Mrs. Nell Lane Bradford Scholarship Foundation, Inc., provides individual scholarships, paid directly to the educational institution, to students who qualify and apply yearly, note local media sources.

With the generous donations of persons and organizational sponsors, the Bradford Foundation is able to carry out its mission of providing students the opportunity to succeed in education.

Again, the festive event takes place at the VBC North Hall Saturday, July 28, from 6-9 p.m. All attendees can expect to hear a talented, live choir, additional music and a dinner. Tickets can be purchased by contacting Patricia Ward at (256) 603-6926. Additional information about the Gala can be found at www.bradfordscholarship.org or info@bradfordscholarship.org.

Alabama Actress Stars in Controversial Series

Body positivity groups are calling for the boycott of "Insatiable," Netflix's newest comedy series that stars Huntsville actress Debby Ryan.

Last week, the trailer made its rounds across the Internet and not many people are here for it. Premiering in less than two weeks, the show is already in hot water due to its controversial premise.

The series follows Patty (played by Ryan), a bullied, obese high schooler who dramatically loses weight after having her mouth wired shut over the summer. Returning to school with her newly-obtained physique, Patty plots revenge against those that previously wronged her.

"Insatiable" has a full-season order and it appears that the popular streaming service has no plans to remove the show. No stranger to controversy, Netflix received backlash for their involvement with "13 Reasons Why," another show that focuses on a high school following the suicide of a student. Based off Jay Asher's 2007 novel, the series got flack for its depiction of mental illness, suicide, and references to gun violence.

Marketed as a comedy, many organizations are accusing "Insatiable" to be a form of "fat shaming," calling the show "toxic." However, actress

Alyssa Milano, who plays Patty's mother responded to naysayers stating, "We are addressing (through comedy) the damage that occurs through fat shaming."

The leading lady has yet to make an official statement regarding the show's backlash, but she did re-post an article that bolsters her T.V. parent's views. Ryan is best known for her tenure on the Disney Channel, appearing in popular programs "The Suite Life on Deck," "16 Wishes," "Radio Rebel" and "Jessie."

Ryan Seacrest and show-runner Lauren Gussis are executive producers. The controversial series stars Debby Ryan, Alyssa Milano, Dallas Roberts, Kimmy Shields, Irene Choi, Erinn Westbrook, Christopher Gorham and Michael Provost.

"Insatiable" premieres August 10 on Netflix.

Millennial Thought

by Josh Alex Baker

Was There an Easier Way to Grow?

Artist and activist Tupac Shakur offers up one of the greatest symbols of defiant strength: the rose that grew from concrete. Shakur paints an image of life occurring where it previously seemed impossible. Despite logical expectation and prevailing against all odds, the rose emerges still.

This poignant image serves as a reminder that even in the most barren phases of our lives, we can grow. It calls on the most cunning and daring parts of ourselves to valiantly push forward and survive our worst circumstances.

But the more I thought about the symbolism of this rose, the more I began to see a deeper implication. As we think of the figures in our lives that we consider "strong," we so often synonymize their existence with their ability to survive. It becomes our simple logic that people who have adapted to fighting for what they have are naturally inclined to do so.

... all who rise defiantly do not always bask in this defiance ...

However, all who rise defiantly do not always bask in this defiance.

If we may be fully transparent for a moment, there are so many invaluable riches that our darkest moments take from us.

Time and time again, after enduring hardship, we are expected to rebuild. Of course. That's what "strong people" do. But this rebuilding is not done without mourning. The loss of what we had. The loss of who we were.

Our ability to grow defiantly doesn't cancel out our desire to grow gently. Without strain. Without trying to prove that the pain made it worth it.

Today, as we check in on our "strong friends," may we ensure that we are truly seeing them for all that they are.

Huntsville Says Goodbye to Another Centenarian

Alabama A&M University's oldest alum, Mr. Robert Coleman "R.C." Adams, transitioned on Monday, July 16, 2018, at age 104.

Born in the town of Linden in Marengo County, Ala., Adams began his earthly journey on May 5, 1914. Following his primary and secondary education in Linden, Adams served in the United States Army during World War II.

Upon his return from the military, he made his home in Huntsville, Ala., in 1949. He earned his undergraduate degree in building science in 1955 and started Adams Construction Company.

His career and entrepreneurial endeavors led him to Huntsville's Community Action Agency and as owner of his own taxi cab company.

A faithful and dedicated member of Progressive Union

Missionary Baptist Church, Adams was well known for his community and civic involvement.

During the 1960's, he participated in the civil rights movement and followed Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., around the state of Alabama and was present at the Selma to Montgomery march across the Edmund Pettus Bridge on March 7, 1965.

Additionally, he served as one of the organizers of the Huntsville/Madison County Branch of the NAACP and served as president.

In his vast lifetime, Adams received scores of honors, accolades, commendations, citations and proclamations for recognition for his life work and service to the greater Huntsville area as one of the oldest members of the community.

The celebration of life service was held on Friday, July 20, 2018 at Progressive Union Missionary Baptist with Dr. Wayne P. Snodgrass as officiant. Terri L. Ray and the staff of Nelms Memorial Funeral Home assisted the family.

PEYD Brings Summer Fun to Edmonton Heights

As part of Par Excellence Youth Development (PEYD), two days were spent introducing golf to youth attending the Edmonton Height summer program.

Yes, it was hot, but out of 26 kids, only a couple complained about the heat. The adult staff complained more than the kids did. The neighborhood playground was turned into a mini driving range, using SNAG golf equipment.

The kids enjoyed themselves and learned to be safe in golf, how to have fun, while applying the words respect and patience. They also learned how to grip the clubs, how to stand and how to swing the clubs. Of course, they only had two lessons, but they did what was asked of them and they did their best.

Most of them will never make it on a sports school team, but (if it's up to me) they will be able to play golf for a lifetime. Each kid that hit the target bullseye, earned a quarter. I had more fun than they did!

PEYD, afterschool program focuses on character building, academic development (i.e., science, reading and math, and life & golf skills).

Thanks to the following for their support including: Dwight U. Cole, from Florence, Ala.; Representative Anthony Daniels of District 53; Representative Laura Hall of District 19; and Joseph Lee, Edmonton Height executive director and staff.

Nugatory Negatives

The Hebrew writer says that Jesus discounted the shame of the Cross because of the joy that was set before Him. In other words, He made the negatives of the Cross nugatory or insignificantly inconsequential by the higher calling of His purpose and the joy of pleasing His Father.

That is what every believer must learn to do in navigating through the negatives of his/her journey. Without this resolve that is grounded in complete confidence in the providence and promises of God, faith will wither and die like an unkept plant void of sunshine and water needed to keep it alive. This resolve must be both informed and inspired by being cognizant and conscious of a purpose that is rooted and grounded in something and Someone that is larger than one's own life. One might say, "Well that's Jesus and He was expected and empowered to be able to face Calvary's horror.

However, it was the Apostle Paul who voiced this same kind of consciousness when he said in his parting words to the Ephesian elders that even with knowing that his future included negatives such as "chains and tribulations," that he was not moved by any of them, because his goal in life was to "finish his course with joy." A life of faith and purpose cannot be lived without the presence of the nemeses of negatives that are designed to divert destiny. The only way to avoid that is by making those negatives become nugatory negatives.

New York Life "The Company You Keep"

Champion Game Plan for Life

by Preston Brown

James 4:1-3 says, What causes fights among you? Don't they come from your desires that battle within you? You desire but do not have, so you kill. You covet but you cannot get what you want, so you quarrel and fight. You do not have because you do not ask God. When you ask, you do not receive, because you ask with the wrong motives.

You know, looking at this scripture made me think about something that is currently going on. Just recently the National Football League selected the players that will be inducted into the Hall of Fame. People like Randy Moss, Ray Lewis and Brian Urlacher, to name a few.

They also selected Terrell Owens, but he has decided not to attend the ceremony because he feels perhaps he wasn't selected soon enough. Now to be fair, "T.O." as he is called, certainly had the statistics for him to be a "first ballot" Hall-of-Fame selection. But since he was not, he is skipping the ceremonies. Now this is hard for a lot of people (me included) to understand. Because it is such a great honor to be selected, no matter how long it takes.

You know, anytime we seek self-gratification it comes with a cost. In T. O.'s case, it will cost him a "memory" of an event that he will never get back. Now when we look at our own lives from a spiritual perspective, seeking to be number one on an individual basis can put the Christian man or woman in the middle of a great tension. In other words, part of us wants to please God, while the other part wants to please ourselves and the world. So, whenever we find ourselves in such a "bind," I believe that there are a few things that we need to pay attention to.

The writer James attempts to make the case for the problems that we can incur in search of self-gratification. First, we have to pay attention to the "desires that battle within us." You see, in the quest to be the best, you will find yourself comparing your situation to someone else's situation. And, when you do, pride and envy raises its ugly head, which causes hostility towards one another. It also damages friendships and weakens your witness for God.

So, we have to control the desires that battle within us. We also need to understand that seeking self-gratification will affect our prayer life. According to the writer James, you end up with un-answered prayers because you ask with the wrong motives. Not realizing that we stand in the way of our own prayers. And finally when we seek self-gratification it affects our relationship with God. Because God dislikes those who seek to be number one at the expense of others.

Proverbs 29:23 says, A man's pride will bring him low, but the humble in spirit will retain honor. You see, we are not faithful to God when we constantly feed the desires of our flesh. So the remedy for all of these problems can be found in James 4:7, where it says, submit yourselves to God and resist the devil and he will flee from you.

When we put God first in our lives, there is no need for us to desire to be number one ... Stay encouraged my brothers and sisters.

programs of service to Madison and Morgan counties because the chapter won on the regional level. At the 86th South Eastern Regional Conference held on March 1-4, 2018, in Nashville, Tennessee, Rho Chi Omega Chapter received regional and international program awards.

The chapter, under the leadership of Robin Miller, president, and Tonnesha Lewis, vice president and program chairman, won the following regional and international programs awards for graduate medium chapters (51 to 100 members):

- Johnella Martin NAACP - This award is given to the chapter that made the largest donation to NAACP since the last Regional Conference.
- Target 1: Educational Enrichment ASCEND Signature Program - This award is presented to the Graduate Chapter that has prepared students to transition from high school to college, a vocational/technical school or work. For the past four years, Rho Chi Omega prepared over fifty students for their transition by providing educational workshops, cultural outings, and HBCU tours.
- One Million Backpacks Achievement - This award is presented to the graduate chapter that collected backpacks from its members and distributed them to their community partners such as Sommerville Road Elementary School, and Decatur Youth Services. The chapter has donated over 1,000 backpacks.

- Think HBCU Chapter Hall of Fame Achievement - This program target focused on encouraging awareness, advocacy and financial support for Historically Black Colleges and Universities with over $40,000 donated to HBCUs.
- Think HBCU Individual Hall of Fame Achievement - This award was presented to the chapter member who donated the most to HBCUs from January 1, 2017 to December 31, 2017, in addition to participating in other campaigns and organizing or leading unique and innovative awareness activities.

This award was given to five individual members of the sorority. Congratulations to Robin Miller for receiving this award.

- Global Impact Achievement - This award was presented to the chapter that demonstrated the most unique ways in raising awareness of global issues, engaging ASCEND students, and educating our communities.
- Technology—Best Practices - This award was presented to the chapter who utilized Microsoft 365 that was provided to all chapter by Alpha Kappa Alpha's Corporate Office.

The chapter looks forward to continuing to serve the community under the 2018-2022 International Program theme "Exemplifying Excellence through Sustainable Service" under the new International President, Dr. Glenda Glover.
